Programme Highlight

Power Quality (PQ) has been a going concern with the increase deployment of technology equipment and electronic devices. The CLP Power Quality Exhibition Centre was established in 2004, aiming to give the general public a better understanding of the vital issue of power quality. It consists of power quality technology corner which exhibits a series of new devices that ensure the power quality.

The purpose of this visit is to provide an opportunity for young members to have better ideas about the power quality control system, the causes of the power quality distortion and the potential impact of interruptions on a reliable electricity supply. The program begins with an overview about the power quality exhibition centre features. Afterwards, a guided tour and illustration for the power quality distortion, voltage dips, harmonic distortions and the potential impact of interruptions on a reliable electricity supply.
